Nurses work one-on-one with patients in a variety of health settings. Nurses’ responsibilities involve assessing patient health problems and needs, developing and implementing nursing care plans, and maintaining medical records. Nursing professionals administer care to ill, injured, convalescent, or disabled patients. Nurses might also be found advising patients on health maintenance and/or disease prevention.

The Associate of Science in Nursing (ASN) allows students to study in the classroom and combine technology to learn about a variety of nursing specialties such as medical-surgical, maternal-child, psychiatric, surgical, and home health care nursing. Students also get hands-on experience, caring for patients at several of the health care facilities in the region and practicing their skills by using computerized mannequins. After earning an A.S. students are required to take the national exam for registered nurse licensure.

Consistent with the overall mission of the University of Pittsburgh at Bradford, the Associate of Science degree in Nursing includes a liberal arts core curriculum.
