There’s a new doctor in town…..Dr. Gregory A. Ambuske has joined Bradford Regional Medical Center’s Quality Care Internal Medicine practice.

Dr. Ambuske joined the staff after Dr. Syed D. Ali, M.D. announced his plans to leave the practice, effective June 13th.

Ambuske, a Bradford native and a Pitt-Bradford graduate, brings with him the skill and knowledge of a fine education and a hometown upbringing.

“With Dr. Ambuske and our present office staff continuing, I feel very confident that patients in this community will be provided with the same compassionate and high level of quality care that has been the hallmark of Quality Care Internal Medicine,” Ali said.

Ambuske fondly remembers his years at Pitt-Bradford. “My education at Pitt-Bradford afforded me the opportunity to obtain a lot of individualized attention from my professors. With the smaller class sizes, teachers and students knew each other on a personal basis. I had some of the best instructors in my college career at Pitt-Bradford, and I was fortunate to attend this university,” said Ambuske.

When asked about his choice to become a physician and his early college years he replied, “make the most of your education. It is important to find something you are passionate about and make it your life’s work.”

Ambuske started his medical career at Pitt-Bradford graduating with a bachelor of science degree in biology and a minor in chemistry. Carrying his passion for health care he attended the University of Wyoming School of Pharmacy where after graduation he was the pharmacist/pharmacy manager at K-Mart Pharmacy in Pittsburgh, Allentown and at the K-Mart Pharmacy in Bradford.
With his passion for healthcare still growing, Ambuske was ready for yet another challenge. He traveled to Philadelphia where he received his medical training at the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine. He graduated with a doctorate of osteopathy in 2003. Ambuske and his wife moved to Pittsburgh, PA where he completed his residency at UPMC-Mercy and was Chief Resident of Internal Medicine.

Along with carrying a full patient load and long office hours, Dr. Ambuske is the director of the Diabetes Clinic at BRMC; serves on the medical staff at BRMC; and has privileges at the Bradford Manor, Bradford Ecumenical Home, The Pavilion at BRMC, and Chapel Ridge. He is a member of the Pennsylvania Medical Society and the American College of Physicians. According to his patients, he serves them with skill and compassion. He and his wife Ann have two children: Holly (2) and Andrew (1).

When he has a little downtime you can find him with his family on the ski slopes, golf course or competing in a triathlon. Their decision to relocate to Bradford, was an easy one. “After having the opportunity to live in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Wyoming and North Carolina I had the great feeling of what it means to really come home,” said Ambuske.

“The biggest advantage to BRMC is the same for both the patient and the physician: the patient is able to obtain individualized attention,” said Ambuske. “Being a physician and knowing the other physicians on staff and in town makes consulting and referrals very efficient for the patient. When you have the opportunity to work with the same nursing staff and the same physicians, you get to know them well, and the care is expedited for the patients. I love Bradford, and I love what I do. It doesn’t get any better than that!”
